PART II TEACHING PLAN

Introduction

ATTENTION: Collectively, the emergency services tasks you are studying are preparing you to become useful members of emergency services units. These tasks will enable you to understand and learn more technical and skilled tasks for future emergency services missions.

MOTIVATION: Learning these tasks well will develop your skills enabling you to make a significant contribution towards saving a life.

OVERVIEW: This course is designed to provide the remaining basic knowledge and skills necessary to qualify you for the General ES Specialty rating.

TRANSITION: Today, we will study the remaining emergency services tasks in preparation for the "Test For Introduction To Emergency Services."

Body

Emergency Services Tasks.

Ask the cadets if there are any questions that pertain to the previous tasks and discuss the answers.

Beginning with Task P-0008 continue to explain each subdivision of the task using the same teaching techniques as the previous lesson.

Continue explaining tasks P-0009, P-0010, C-0001, O-0901 and F-0001.

Remind the students to read for review and study all of the tasks relating to emergency services.

Conclusion

SUMMARY: Today, we completed the study of the general emergency services tasks required for the emergency services test. As we progressed through this course you have acquired knowledge and skills required in becoming a competent member of a Civil Air Patrol emergency unit.

REMOTIVATION: Learning the various knowledge and skill tasks will enable you to make a significant contribution to saving a life. There is no greater contribution to others than to help those who are in distress.

CLOSURE: Next week, we will take the test for general emergency services. Review all of the tasks and discuss them with each other between now and the time for taking the test. (Remember, "GOOD LUCK IS PREPARATION MEETING OPPORTUNITY.")
